Axley Brynelson's Construction Law Team focuses on construction, architecture, building, real estate, engineering, transportation and development matters. Axley Brynelson has the largest collection of attorneys who regularly practice construction law in the state of Wisconsin. Brian Mullins and Buck Sweeney co-chair the group, each with more than 20 years of experience as construction attorneys.

Many of our Madison, Wisconsin attorneys have actual experience in the construction industry - not in the boardroom, but in the field where important decisions are made. We bring this expertise to a variety of transactions, including the construction and management of health care and scientific facilities, educational facilities, transit and roadway projects, municipal and industrial infrastructure, environmental and waste management sites, sand and gravel quarries, residential and commercial developments, engineering and entertainment complexes. When necessary, we stand ready to protect our clients with a talented and diverse team of attorneys who actually understand the construction industry.

Whether our attorneys are in the office or out in the field, you can be confident that Axley Brynelson’s Construction Law Team has a hands-on, working knowledge of the issues that affect your business.
